

Volunteer and turn hope into action

Join the fight against global poverty and volunteer with Christian Aid in your church community.

Volunteer for justice

Poverty isn't a choice you make. It's a trap that denies you the opportunity to make your life better. This is not God's plan.

At Christian Aid, we're inspired by the gospel message of hope and love.

Everyone is equal in the sight of God. Jesus called his followers to love God, love their neighbours, and seek justice for people who are oppressed.

We believe each one of us has unique gifts to offer the world. When you bring yours to a volunteering role with us, you

Hassan and Zahra, with their children, fled conflict in Sudan. They are now living in a refugee camp in South Sudan, and Hassan volunteers with Christian Aid partner SAADO to support others.

How you can get involved

As a church-based volunteer, your role is crucial in inspiring your faith community to partner with us through giving, acting and praying. You could:

- Use our prayer and worship resources
- Campaign for equality and justice
- Book a Christian Aid speaker at caid.ie/BookaSpeaker
- Host a fundraising event
- Arrange a church collection

Volunteering can help you develop good communication, teamwork and organisational skills. You'll also learn more about our vision and values, and meet like-minded people. All you need is the time to fit volunteering around your current commitments.

Raising awareness and funds puts hope into action.

Book a speaker, like Kevwe, to inspire your church.

You could fundraise by organising a quiz night.
